

Final Programme

AC2 will be a follow up event of the Year 2 Network School in Wrocław. Its main focus will be on the comparative aspects of individual ER and ESR projects. AC2 will also make it possible to discuss contingency procedures in case of problems encountered during empirical research by ESRs.

This Network School will be centred on theoretical and empirical exploration of European models of capitalism in terms of macro-economic context, collective bargaining structures, unionism/employee relations and work organisation.

B.3.2. Network-wide training events, schools, conferences, workshops

(i) Network-wide training activities

Network-wide training activities are described in Table B.3.3. There are two main types of events: Network Schools: comprising 7 days of core and optional courses (unless otherwise specified the speakers included are the ITN-based scholars); and Annual Colloquia: comprising 3 full days each and involving the participation of each ESR and ER, academic partners and one representative of each Associated Partner providing feedback on ESR project progress.

Network School Year 2 in Wrocław (Month 24): Comparative European Social Models

(Responsible partners: Wrocław, Evry, Budapest). This Network School will be centred on theoretical and empirical exploration of European models of capitalism in terms of macro-economic context, collective bargaining structures, unionism/employee relations and work organisation. Intensive pre-reading and the participation of invited guest lecturers from AP10: ETUI will be the core part of the programme. Optional courses will include Techniques of Secondary Data Analysis (Responsible partner: Wrocław); and Discourse Analysis & Visual Sociology (Responsible partner: Evry). There will also be applied training offered by private sector and Associate Partners: PPCM: 'Public Presenting and Crisis Management in Research Projects' (by AP2: Neuroedukacja); PSUE 'Public sector unions and social dialogue in Europe' (by AP4: UNISON).

Annual Colloquium Year 2 (AC2) in Wrocław (Month 24): Comparative Methodology & Paradigms (Responsible partner: Wrocław, prepared in cooperation with ER2 and ER1). AC2 will be a follow up event of the Year 2 Network School in Wrocław. Its main focus will be on the comparative aspects of individual ER and ESR projects. AC2 will also make it possible to discuss contingency procedures in case of problems encountered during empirical research by ESRs.

B.4.3. Management structure, organisation and procedures

(iv) Other roles

A Steering Group (all Full Network Participants, supervisors, ERs, Associated Partners) will be invited to each Annual Colloquium. For the three year duration of the ESR training, this group will provide a monitoring and advisory role on the progress of the ESRs and provide feedback directly to ESRs and supervisors as well as being invited to submit more formal input to the Supervisory Board regarding the operation of the Network. This Group, which will consist of a significant number of practitioners and policymakers, will also provide a crucial disseminating role within their respective networks following the Annual Colloquia (e.g., of project e-newsletters, publications).

~ B.5.3. Outreach activities

1. Dissemination training: Each ESR Personal Development Plan to be presented during the first Network School will then include specific targets for dissemination. These will be monitored closely by their supervisors to ensure the development path is being followed and achievements will be documented in each of the Progress Reports they submit to the Annual Colloquia in Years 1, 2 and 3. Each ESR will be expected initially to contribute to public dissemination of the launching of the ITN through at least two of the following: their personal web pages, a (joint researcher) blog, a YouTube video, a podcast, a joint electronic newsletter. In Year Two they will be expected to collaborate to maintain this output and to post one working paper based on their initial literature reviews and/or on their first fieldwork findings on the ITN website. Each ESR will aim to keep in contact with their respondents through tweet links. This will access to our activities for those who have particularly helped us. One session at each AC will be devoted to presentations of the dissemination activities of the ESRs and ERs over the previous period, and to a discussion of improving their effectiveness.

2. Targeting people: We will target a wider public audience in six main ways: (1) The project website will be crucial. It will be professionally designed and supported to make it attractive and accessible. Each of the ERs will in turn (ER1, M3-23; ER2, M13-36; and ER3, M25-45) take responsibility (working with the Coordinator) to: (a) Edit the ITN website, (b) Produce one annual e-report on the ITN's activities; (c) Produce one video clip for the website; (d) Produce one issue of a joint electronic project newsletter with the ESRs; (e) Ensure the website publishes each of the ESRs' literature reviews and the first drafts of the ER's articles as papers in a working paper series; (f) Ensure there is a regular input of photographs into the website taken by the ESRs and ERs around the different themes they are working on. (2) The organisation of the Annual Colloquia will be the responsibility of one ER working with the partner and the ESRs based at the venue locations: Evry, Wrocław and Strathclyde. Each of the Annual Colloquia will schedule at least four sessions of public-facing events, with key note speakers and significant efforts put in to ensure as wide an attendance as possible. (3) Each full partner will take responsibility for issuing a catchy paper and electronic national language 'who we are' leaflet to the national media at the start of the project, followed by at least one release to the national media each year. These will focus on the initial findings of the researchers, on the pedagogic teaching packs, and on the policy recommendations and will be reproduced in the project's e-newsletter. Other broad forms of dissemination will include each full partner taking the responsibility to produce and upload a video clip through, for example, YouTube between months 9 and 24 of the project.

3. Schools: A team comprising the three ERs and three Theme Leaders will be given the role of Marie Curie Ambassadors (MCA) liaising with schools. Their specific remit, in cooperation with one designated ESR from each thematic group, is to make available materials for school students from the Network's developing findings. These teaching materials will be available via our website, to all in teaching (and other) domains while the MCAs will ensure that the contacts made are sustained through partnership arrangements between schools and the Network.
